

Character A is looking out of the window excitedly. Character B is unexcited throughout, until receiving the best news at the end!

A Wow! It's snowing!

B Oh, no!

A What do you mean 'oh no'?

B Well, it's going to cause so much trouble. All the roads will be closed.

A Oh, I'm so excited! We can go outside and play snowballs.

B I hate snowballs. The snow always goes down your neck.

A Quick, put your scarf on then. Let's get our wellies on!

B Oh, not my wellies. They're so cold in the snow and my toes freeze. They feel like they're going to drop off.

A (ignoring B) Oh, look at it! It's coming down really fast now. Look at those great big flakes!

B The only flakes I like are Cadburys!

A It's so exciting! We'll build a great snowman.

B That means picking up the snow in your hands and my fingers freeze. They feel like they're going to drop off.

A Put your gloves on then. (A pauses and looks worried) The only big problem is ...

B Oh, no, I knew there'd be a big problem!

A ... we're going to have to miss school.

B Why?

A School is closed because of the snow. (A looks really upset)

B (B's face brightens up) Yippee! Let's go out and play in it!
